Province Faces Serious Shortage Doctors, Dentists

Armed Services May Feel Repercussions From Lack of Proper Medical Facilities

Because of the lack of qualified staff, it has been decided that the provincial traveling health clinic will not operate this year, Dr. M. R. Bow, deputy minister of health, said Thursday.

Stresses Shortage

The deputy minister made this announcement in commenting on the shortage of doctors and dentists that exists in Alberta. "On the whole, there is still a serious shortage in the province," he said.

In Orkney, Hon. Ian Mackenzie Wednesday said that unless the situation in Canada could be dealt with in another way, it may be necessary to direct private medical practitioners to points where they are badly needed.

Dr. Bow said he has advocated for the last year that those engaged in public health work, doctors, dentists and nurses, should be put into uniform for the duration, so they could be assigned to points where their services were most urgently required.

SAFEGUARD HEALTH

It is essential to safeguard the health of the civilian population, or there would be repercussions on the health of those in the armed forces as one is related to the other, said Dr. Bow.

Of nine public health units in the province, five are now operating with part-time medical officers while the regular medical officers have been left to join the armed services, he stated.

The public health staff situation is more acute in western Canada than elsewhere, because of the high population and large areas to be covered.

We are receiving fine co-operation on the part of local medical health units, and we are carrying on in the health units with the present nursing staff," it was said.

SURVEY MADE
A survey conducted some six months ago showed there were only 194 doctors in Edmonton and Calgary, and about 200 in the rest of Alberta. In respect to dentists, there are only 60 in the whole province, outside of those in Edmonton and Calgary.

Two rural hospitals which for a time were without doctors have been supplied, Dr. Bow said.

Germany and Japan, and after the conclusion of hostilities in the said war, the amendment shall cease to have effect and the war, after 9 p.m. shall be reinstated.

Bank Clearings from the Edmonton Clearing House for the week ended July 15 totalled $8,662,917.44 against $3,748,903.34 for the corresponding week of last year.

Two decrees absolute of divorce were granted in supreme court on Thursday by Mr. Justice G. B. O'Connor. Those receiving the decrees were: Tadeo Steller, Wetsakwin, from Augustine Steller, and Harold P. Rogers, Edmonton, from Dorothy Rogers.

The department of field crops, University of Alberta, is holding its World Order. The school is affiliated with "The Fellowship for a Christian Social Order" and open to everyone. Full particulars may be obtained from Rev. A. H. Brown, Gleichen, Alberta, or H. M. Horricks, Medicine Hat.

Refund to the motor vehicle owners who are in the AA and A ration categories of a considerable portion of the license fee collected for 1943, and to institute for 1944 a new schedule of license fees applicable to all motor vehicles based on the limitation of travel owing to war emergency was urged in a resolution presented to the provincial legislature by the members of the Alberta Motor Vehicle Association.

It was submitted in the resolution that taxation on the motor vehicle and its operation is, and for a great many years has been a great deal heavier than upon other classes of property.

It was pointed out also that under war conditions the use of the motor vehicle was greatly limited, particularly by the rationing of gasoline and the inability to obtain tires.

The resolution pointed out also that the Alberta motor license fee was probably as high, if not the highest of any license fee in the Dominion.

Cronin, who hails from Boston, Mass., and Agnew, whose home address is in Cheshire, England, were sitting around the American Red Cross Centre on Jasper Avenue the other evening.

They were in the reading room, thumbing through a few magazines when one happened to ask the other where he came from.

Then they started to talk and it was long before both the servicemen were rubbing their eyes in amazement.

For the conversation hadn't preceded very far when LAC Agnew discovered he had been living with an uncle and aunt of Staff Sergeant Cronin in Manchester, before he left for Canada to train as a navigator.

Agnew had been billeted at the home of his uncle, Michael Cronin, of 28 Glebe Road, Westview, Manchester.

The U.S. Army staff sergeant also recalled that he had lived within five minutes walk of where Agnew had been billeted before he came to the States in 1930.

HERE TWO MONTHS
Born in Galway, Ireland, the staff sergeant lived much of his early life in Manchester, before coming to Boston. He has been in Edmonton two months.

Agnew arrived in Edmonton just Wednesday. By a strange twist, Cronin's uncle and aunt never told Agnew they had a nephew in the U.S.A.

Now they both of them are in the U.S.A. The staff sergeant is now in the U.S. Army, serving with the British Army in the U.S. Staff sergeant Agnew arrived in Edmonton just Wednesday.

Africa Waits

By AHMED ABDULLAH

THE STORY. Lincoln Elliot, American, decides to have one final fling of adventure before settling down to his important duties as the newly appointed military attaché in French colony in Central Africa. Dismissing himself as the Army's Third Division, he is sent to the French colony of the Middle East. He is sent to the French colony of the Middle East. He is sent to the French colony of the Middle East.

CHAPTER VIII

HE was appalled. He felt his hair was being driven by a heavy wind. There was a spasm in his heart, grief, remorse.

But a second later, another not too projected itself across the morose confusion in his brain. The idea, so simple and true, of duty. Duty, too, was part of life. It was—and he wondered if, perhaps it was his father's New England inheritance calling the tune—the first part of it, being the most selfish. And his duty was clear. He must act, sharply and at once, against the conspirators, and, chief of all, against the hysteric, the Man of Mystery, sitting there in his chair, smiling at him with his eyes.

A hard undertaking. But not impossible. He knew where the man lived. Nur, coming as a messenger of the H. Hassan, would be his ally. He would start at once in the interior. He turned to go, looked down at the dead woman.

She lay there, like a bird, brittle broken, too. A while curbed her lips. It was a calm and quietly happy smile.

How and where, without attracting attention.

Then he remembered that from thought on, by order of Al H. Hassan, no devil would enter here. Nur, given the supernatural power in which the leonard was held, would be a passing native stranger.

Very well. Let the Lodge (and he was) be his tomb. It was fitting.

Perhaps, some anonymous policeman would wonder about the ramshackle, deserted building. Would search it, discover a little heap of bones, mark it down as another unsolved African mystery.

He covered Fouzia's face with a fold of her robe.

"May the earth be light to you!" he spoke the Muslim prayer for the departed. "May the Brother Muhammad the Adored—on whom the Peace—open wide to you the gates of Paradise."

He did not dare risk a return to his own bedroom at the palace for money or weapon. But he had no need of either. For he was traveling on a devil's and thoroughbred horse, the devil, the most of God, in the free, chartered vagabond known as Hassan would guide and to whom all lend a helping hand.

One thing, though, he had to do and some sort of reason to his second-in-command and good friend, Captain Pelletier. So, at a coffee shop that was still open, he asked for paper and pencil and wrote a short note.

"Going away on official business. In the best you can while I am gone, and explain my absence to the most plausible lie you can think of. If I have not returned or if you have no word from me by the end of the next seven weeks, report me to the authorities as dead in the line of duty."

Right—he thought—in the line of duty.

He went to his house. He knew where Pelletier's bedroom was located. He wrapped the note about a small stone and with straight, sure aim, tossed it through the open window.

A second later, he heard a crash and saw a shattered windowpane.

He started exclamation—and was off.

Defer Decision On Application Wage Increase

Decision was reserved by the Western War Labor Board in the application of 1,000 Canadian employees of Bechtel, Price, Canadian asking for a board order that would enable the company to pay its Canadian employees on the same scale as its American workers.

The request was submitted through a committee of employees after full consultation with the employers generally, and was presented to the War Labor Board by N. H. McClellan, K. C. representative for the Canadian employees.

Opening his submission to the board Mr. McClellan said that it would not be necessary to labor the point that for the same service the same employee should receive the same wage. He said the difference in wages between Canadian and American employees was not a result of discrimination but of the fact that the Canadian employees were not paid on the same scale as the American employees. The fact is that the Canadian employees have been paid on a lower scale than the American employees.

He pointed out that the application was made on the basis of the fact that the Canadian employees were not paid on the same scale as the American employees. He said that the Canadian employees were not paid on the same scale as the American employees. He said that the Canadian employees were not paid on the same scale as the American employees.

UNDERSTOOD POSITION

The applicants understood, Mr. McClellan said, that the position was that the Canadian employees would willingly grant the increase of percentage and that the same scale as the American employees. He said that the Canadian employees were not paid on the same scale as the American employees. He said that the Canadian employees were not paid on the same scale as the American employees.

WAGE OF SECURITY

He submitted that because of this lack of security of tenure the Canadian employees should be permitted to earn a higher wage temporarily as the war continues. He said that the Canadian employees were not paid on the same scale as the American employees. He said that the Canadian employees were not paid on the same scale as the American employees.

Gen. Eisenhower Highly Regards Canadian Troops

BY WILLIAM STEWART
AN ALLIED FORCES COMMAND POST, North Africa, July 15.—(CP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the big personality United States general, who is commander-in-chief of the Allied operations in Sicily and under whom the Canadians are fighting for the first time, has a high appreciation of Canadian personnel and of the Dominion's war effort.

He lost no time in visiting Canadian troops in Sicily to welcome them to the invasion line. Previous Allied headquarters dispatches told him Gen. Eisenhower landed in the Italian island soon after the invasion began going ashore at a beachhead at one of the beaches on the Pachino peninsula where the Canadians landed. Gen. Eisenhower also is a point of public regard for the armed forces. In that respect he resembles Lt. Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the Canadian overseas army, with whom Gen. Eisenhower is acquainted.

Exchange Rate Change Opposed

OTTAWA, July 15.—(CP)—Finance Minister Louis St. Laurent told the House of Commons that any change in the exchange rate of Canadian money in relation to United States funds would cause an undue disturbance in business. The minister would fall far short of the disadvantage.

He was replying to a question from Thomas Reid Lib. New Westminster, who said the 11 per cent official discount on Canadian money in the United States was costing Canada many millions of dollars a year, and asked why it should not be removed.

Mr. St. Laurent said this was a delicate matter. He could not say what might or might not be done. A lowering or removal of the discount would benefit some and damage others. The minister would not offer the disadvantage arising from the resultant devaluation of the Canadian dollar.

C.C.F. Government At Peace Table Urged at Parley

OTTAWA, July 15.—(CP)—Rev. T. C. Douglas, member of parliament for Westburn and leader of the C.C.F. in Saskatchewan, urged a parley of peace advocates from all political parties, government and opposition, to discuss the possibility of a peace conference.

He spoke at the opening session of a three-day convention for which more than 500 delegates registered yesterday.

"Does anyone doubt," he asked, "that if we had had a parley of peace advocates from all political parties, government and opposition, to discuss the possibility of a peace conference, the outcome would have been different?"

Fine Exhibits Of Naval Work To Show Here

When you attend the great Canadian naval war exhibition which opens here on Monday, July 15 in the T. Eaton (Western) Co. Ltd. store you will actually "kill two birds with one stone". You will see naval exhibits and you will make a contribution toward the work of The Navy League of Canada.

Every man who ever owned a mechanical set and every boy now coming out will want to look close. In the delicate mechanism that operates a real live torpedo, Naval technical experts will be on hand to answer questions—so that you can be better. These experts say that the small engine that operates the torpedo is considered to be the most efficient engine, possibly ever made in existence. It operates at such a tremendous efficiency that it is less than one inch in diameter and it is made even thinner than it is in diameter.

But that's only one item of the many that are attracting more than 70,000 people to the exhibition. To everyone familiar with the work of the Navy League, the exhibition will make a special appeal because the revenue derived from the modest admission charge goes to the League and thus to the work of the sea.

This work fine exhibits more activities than can be described briefly. All of which are focused upon the needs of sailors and soldiers. Last Christmas season, for instance, more than 100,000 dry bags were distributed, to say nothing of the thousands of foxes and survivors who were made up and sent to coastal points. Everyone knows that the Navy League collects, sorts and distributes many thousands of magazines every month and one needs only to talk to the men who have been long at sea to learn how important this branch of the work really is.

The Navy League, with its national organization, is well known and trusted with the management of the exhibition tour which is being made under the direction of the National Executive, the Governor General and the Honorable Mr. A. T. G. Macdonald.

The exhibition is being held in the T. Eaton (Western) Co. Ltd. store, 1015-1017, 1019, 1021, 1023, 1025, 1027, 1029, 1031, 1033, 1035, 1037, 1039, 1041, 1043, 1045, 1047, 1049, 1051, 1053, 1055, 1057, 1059, 1061, 1063, 1065, 1067, 1069, 1071, 1073, 1075,
